Justification for Motorized Examination Couch

The department of Clinical Immunology and Rheumatology sees a large number of patients with different kinds of arthritis resulting in difficulty in walking, climbing and other locomotory activities. Therefore, their routine examination becomes difficult owing to their inability to climb on to routine examination couch existing in OPD. Additionally, lot of these patients require intra-articular injections, again leading to same difficulties. Therefore, user department requires two motorised examination couches to be placed in OPD for routine examination and intra-articular injections.
